

I was brought up to understand that self-belief is all important because the first person you've got to make believe that you can do it, is you.